Guest Bios

Meljean Brook

Meljean was raised in the middle of the woods, and hid under her blankets at night with fairy tales, comic books, and romances. She left the forest and went on a misguided tour through the world of accounting before focusing on her first loves, reading and writing—and she realized that monsters, superheroes, and happily-ever-afters are easily found between the covers, as well as under them, so she set out to make her own.

Meljean lives in Portland, Oregon with her husband and daughter.

Michell Durrin

Michell Durrin is a promoter, model, and well-known fixture of Portland's event and convention circuit, an officer of the Portland Steampunk Society, and a stage manager & event producer with Iniquitous Productions and other local entertainment collectives. Some have speculated that Michell is in fact the mysterious and deadly Oberleutnant Petra Genoveva, "the Silesian Kitten", recon photographer and gunnery officer aboard the zeppelin Der Fliegende Igel -- but such loose talk is dangerous.

I realized that the academic path I had chosen was not for me. I completed my first computer animated short film during my two and a half year career at the University of Oregon. I received my Master of Fine Art degree in January of 2005. I have been a filmmaker dedicated to such an exciting and challenging field.

Since moving to L.A., I have continued to work from peanut butter and jelly shorts to feature film and the tales of director Calvin Zeston. I know what it may take to make a documentary focusing on important social issues.

Currently I am in the process of completing a film to complete my MFA.

M.K. Hobson

M.K. Hobson was born in River View, Oregon. She attended the University of Oregon where she ran Catalyst Films (the campus film society), The Student Insurgent (a radical student newspaper published) and drove night-shift for a local business. After graduating with a degree in Journalism, she moved to Hiroshima, Japan for a year. She returned to the United States two years later, started her own business, Labor, a community newspaper, and worked for Bud Clark. She ran the paper for several years before moving to a career in the field of corporate communications for Fortune 500 clients in the field of advertising.

Currently, she is one of the co-founders of the short fiction podcast. She lives in Los Angeles with her husband and daughter. (photo by M.K. Hobson)

Jay Lake

Jay Lake has been described as one of the rising stars of the science fiction and fantasy genre. Since first appearing on the scene in late 2001, he has seen over 240 short stories published, along with seven novels out, and three more forthcoming over the next few years. His work has received starred reviews in Publishers Weekly and Booklist, and significant recognition within the science fiction and fantasy field. He has won two of the most prestigious awards in science fiction and been nominated for numerous others.

Today Jay Lake lives in Portland, Oregon, where he works on multiple writing and editing projects. His 2007 book Mainspring received a starred review in Booklist. His 2009 novels are Green from Tor Books, Madness of Flowers from Night Shade Books, and Death of a Starship from MonkeyBrain Books. His short fiction appears regularly in literary and genre markets worldwide. Jay is a winner of the John W. Campbell Award for Best New Writer, and a multiple nominee for the Hugo and World Fantasy Awards. Jay can be reached through his Web site at www.jlake.com. (Photo © Roger Podva 2009)
