Guest Bios

Meljean Brook

Meljean was raised in the middle of the woods, and hid under her blankets at night with fairy tales, comic books, and romances. She left the forest and went on a misguided tour through the world of accounting before focusing on her first loves, reading and writing—and she realized that monsters, superheroes, and happily-ever-afters are easily found between the covers, as well as under them, so she set out to make her own.

Meljean lives in Portland, Oregon with her husband and daughter.

Michell Durrin

Michell Durrin is a promoter, model, and well-known fixture of Portland's event and convention circuit, an officer of the Portland Steampunk Society, and a stage manager & event producer with Iniquitous Productions and other local entertainment collectives. Some have speculated that Michell is in fact the mysterious and deadly Oberleutnant Petra Genoveva, "the Silesian Kitten", recon photographer and gunnery officer aboard the zeppelin Der Fliegende Igel -- but such loose talk is dangerous.

Bethe H. Gordon

Moving to Los Angeles to attend film school was the last thing on my mind while growing up on the east coast of Long Island. A serious student in the sciences, I received my Bachelor's degree in Computer Science from Barnard College at Columbia University in 2002.

I realized that the academic path would not suit me after I completed my first computer animated short, The Wink, in 2002. I ended my two and a half year career as a computer consultant to pursue my Master of Fine Art degree at the University of Southern California in January of 2005. I have never imagined being so in love and dedicated to such an exciting and new career.

Since moving to L.A., I have completed several short films ranging from peanut butter and jelly sandwiches taking over a man's world and the tales of director Calvin FrankenPaul-Stein to the story of what it may take to make a decision, and have co-edited a short documentary focusing on impeding global disasters, Ready or Not.

Currently I am in the process of writing and producing my thesis film to complete my MFA.

M.K. Hobson

M.K. Hobson was born in Riverside, California, but grew up in Portland, Oregon. She attended the University of Oregon, where she ran Catalyst Films (the campus film society), helped launch The Student Insurgent (a radical progressive 'zine that's still being published) and drove night-shift cab in nearby Springfield, Oregon. After graduating with a degree in English and Communications, she moved to Hiroshima, Japan to teach English. Returning to the United States two years later, she purchased The Northwest Neighbor, a community newspaper founded by legendary Portland mayor Bud Clark. She ran the paper for several years before moving on to a career in the field of corporate communications, working with Fortune 500 clients in the fields of retirement and healthcare.

Currently, she is one of the co-hosts of Podcastle, the acclaimed short fiction podcast. She lives in Oregon City, Oregon with her husband and daughter. (photo © Kelly Robson 2009)

Jay Lake

Jay Lake has been described as one of the rising stars of the science fiction and fantasy genre. Since first appearing on the scene in late 2001, he has seen over 240 short stories published, along with seven novels out, and three more forthcoming over the next few years. His work has received starred reviews in Publishers Weekly and Booklist, and significant recognition within the science fiction and fantasy field. He has won two of the most prestigious awards in science fiction and been nominated for numerous others.

Today Jay Lake lives in Portland, Oregon, where he works on multiple writing and editing projects. His 2007 book Mainspring received a starred review in Booklist. His 2009 novels are Green from Tor Books, Madness of Flowers from Night Shade Books, and Death of a Starship from MonkeyBrain Books. His short fiction appears regularly in literary and genre markets worldwide. Jay is a winner of the John W. Campbell Award for Best New Writer, and a multiple nominee for the Hugo and World Fantasy Awards. Jay can be reached through his Web site at www.jlake.com. (Photo © Roger Podva 2009)
